SALUTATIO.

THE year has rolled around and now our turn has come to exhibit the varied pictures of the "KALEIDOSCOPE." We have not learned that the laws by which the mechanical Kaleidoscope is constructed have been changed during the past year, and so we have not dared in any great measure to alter the Kaleidoscope that shows the "Life within" at Midd.

Our duty is only to turn the instrument quarter way round, with great care, in the hope that the effect will be beautiful. We have tried to do our duty faithfully and acceptably. We have said farewell to old friends with sorrow, yet we welcome new ones with pleasure.

And now we send out the Record of the year, in confidence that it will be kindly received by all who are interested in college life.

SENIOR CLASS.

'77.

Our work is still before us.

IN a few short months from now, we must doff the gown of student life and don in its stead the toga of toil. There is something of sadness in the thought that we must so soon break off from all the fun and friendships of college days ; yet as we cannot help but do it, we shall do it with brave and uncomplaining hearts, like the many who have gone before. And, moreover, we shall always have the pleasures of memory for the past and the pleasures of hope for the future.

If, while we have tarried in college here, we have carefully sown the seeds of success, in the battles of after life we shall reap for our harvest an abundance of fruit. We must all then work for ourselves, and suckless and poniless go at our tasks: each one must hoe his own hard row in the toilsome garden of gain. By the sweat of the brow and the sweat of the brain we shall struggle as high as we can towards the top in the frantic fight for fame. Our foster mother has done her best to start us well on the rocky road, and it will be our fault alone if we do not enter upon the journey all brimming full of the culture of college. But whatever hap may betide ourselves, we wish for the college a prosperous life. We hope that we shall be so fixed hereafter that we can give her some substantial aid in return for what she has done for us. But however much such aid might be, we are very sure that the debt can never be overpaid.

"Virilitas est potentia."

HALF the journey done, and the skies flashing clear and cloudless beyond! Surely the way grows brighter. But were there not broad rifts of sunshine gleaming over the fields we have passed? How grandly Olympus towered: and how gentle was the murmuring of the Bandusian Fount!

Thermopylæ were a beauteous spot tho' never consecrated, and that was a thrilling scene we looked upon from Abydos.

The cities too, Rome and Athens, were they not grand?

What oratory we listened to! What comedies laughed at! Such tragedies we saw enacted, as those of Sophocles and Eschylus. Nobly, too, did Plato tell us of the life and heroic death of Socrates. Retrospection is not unpleasant, but we turn more joyfully to greet the newer era.

Science is more wonderful than the tales the poets fabled of the gods, and the thought of later civilization brings us nearer the great To-day.

We hail thee, O Junior Year! in the joy that comes of conflicts past and the hope that springs from resolution. Thrice our circle has been broken, death has touched us, but not our Faith or Loyalty.

'78! thy course will be well run, "se tu segui tua stella," "If only thou followest thy star."

SOPHOMORE CLASS.

'79.

"Summum Advenimus."

It would be impossible to condense into one short page the noble characteristics of '79, a class small indeed, but one the mere statement of whose virtues would fill many volumes.

We are Sophomores. We have safely reached in student life that glorious waymark which is the horizon of all before and a lasting memorial to all hereafter.

No longer incipient Freshmen expected to waste their nights in bovine exploits and other attempts of a similar nature, which generally prove wretched failures, we have come off with flying colors from the trials and tribulations of our first year in college. We have proved ourselves eminently "fitted to endure the buffetings of the rudest storm."

But it is needless to enumerate our infinite moral and mental and physical merits—you see, therefore you know.

Our Sophomoric deeds are too many and too magnificent to be related here, from one know all.

The Freshmen were gallantly received with the usual midnight serenade, but alas for them—

"In little bosoms such achievements strike
A kindred spark; they burn to do the like."

Of that famous occurrence it is only necessary to remark Venerunt; Viderunt; Vicimus.

Although '78, in the pride of foolishness, spread herself like a turkey gobbler, we in our wisdom easily fill her vacated position, nay rather overfill it; and let '80 beware lest in attempting to occupy our place she come to grief like the fabled frog.

And now, O '79, may thy bright star continue on its upward course and at the end, for every earthly existence must have an end, may its set be even more glorious than its rise.

FRESHMAN CLASS.

'80.

"Vos novitii ferula ferrea regitis."

WHILE the bells of the nation were tolling out the dead century and ringing in the new, and the veteran Independence Bell, with its voice rendered hoarse and feeble by the snows and suns of a hundred years, was yet proclaiming liberty unto all the land, the class of '80 entered within the walls of Middlebury College.

Our number is not large, but we enter upon our duties determining to exert ourselves to the utmost, for the best interests and advancement of our Alma Mater. We had expected to number more, but owing to certain embarrassments, we are obliged to climb the hill of knowledge with fewer than we had hoped.

There were eleven besides ourselves, who aspired to the honor of being members of the class of '80, but six of them couldn't if they would, five of them wouldn't if they could.

What was our numerical loss was another's numerical gain, and we can heartily congratulate the gainers on their valuable acquisition.

The old ship rides upon a tidal wave this year, and '80, proud to be aboard and at the post of duty, marks out a new era for old M. C. and sails forward with the determination of making her even more popular in the future than she has been in the past. In years to come, it will be a historical fact, that at the beginning of the second century of the United States, Middlebury College donned a new armor determined to be as popular with the people as she was with the students. While, afar in the distant future some modest light of '80 may shed lustre over his Alma Mater, it will be pleasant to remember that we were the Pioneers of the second century and led the great army which followed in our footsteps up to the grand old halls of Middlebury College.

Terms of Admission.

For admission to the Freshman Class, candidates are examined in the following studies:

Latin Grammar, including the Rules of Prosody and Scanning; Cæsar's Commentaries, four books, or Sallust's Conspiracy of Catiline; Cicero, six orations, including the four against Catiline; Virgil, the Bucolics, and six books of the Æneid; Arnold's Latin Prose Composition, to the VIIth Chapter.

Greek Grammar; Xenophon's Anabasis, three books; Homer's Iliad, two books.

Ancient and Modern Geography.

Arithmetic; Algebra; and three books of Loomis' Geometry.

Real equivalents will be accepted in place of any of the Latin or Greek authors named above.

A thorough familiarity with the elements of the Latin and the Greek Grammars is an indispensable requirement for admission.

Students may be admitted to an advanced standing, provided that, in addition to the requisites for admission to the Freshman Class, they are found, on examination, thoroughly acquainted with the several studies of the class which they propose to join. Candidates for such standing should, however, be informed that in consequence of the thorough discipline of the first College year, and the exactness of knowledge which is required of classes, no one can hope, if admitted, to maintain a respectable standing, unless he comes with a high degree of previous preparation. Indeed, it is highly important to the unity and completeness of a liberal education, that the students should enter College at the commencement of the course. The disadvantages incurred by those who postpone an entrance to a later period are much more serious than is commonly supposed.

Every student admitted to an advanced standing (with the exception of those who come from other colleges), is required to pay a fee of $5.00, if he enters after the expiration of the Fall Term of the Freshman year; and of $10.00, if after the expiration of the Fall Term of the Sophomore year.

Candidates for admission must bring a certificate of good moral character; and, if from another college, of their regular dismission and good standing. When a young man has been examined and admitted to college, he is required to attend the prescribed exercises, and is subject to the laws of the Institution.
